Subject: Urgent request for humanitarian evacuation of journalists Ali Al-Attar and Fadi Alwahdi

Dear COGAT officials,

On behalf of our respective press freedom organisations, we write to you with great urgency regarding the cases of Ali Al-Attar and Fadi Alwahdi, both cameramen for Al-Jazeera, who were critically injured while reporting in Gaza.

On 8 October, Ali Al-Attar sustained severe injuries, including an internal cerebral haemorrhage, following an Israeli airstrike in Deir al-Balah. He is currently in critical condition at the European Hospital in Gaza and urgently requires specialised neurological care that is unavailable in Gaza. His family and Al-Jazeera are trying to facilitate his transfer to a suitable medical facility in Jordan or Qatar.

Fadi Alwahdi was gravely wounded on 9 October while reporting from the Jabalia camp. After initial treatment at Al-Maamadi Hospital, his condition remains critical, and he also urgently needs to be safely transferred to a facility outside of Gaza to receive appropriate medical care; the hospital where he is currently being treated has indicated that they cannot provide the necessary treatment due to the current conditions.

Both evacuation processes have stalled as the necessary authorisations are pending. We hold the Israeli government responsible for any deterioration of their conditions caused by this prolonged delay.

Despite our multiple appeals, COGAT has not responded to requests for the evacuation of these two journalists. We call on COGAT to expedite the necessary approvals for their safe transfer out of Gaza. Ali Al-Attar and Fadi Alwahdi are journalists who were wounded while performing their essential work of documenting the humanitarian situation in Gaza. Their safe passage to Jordan or Qatar must be assured, and they must be allowed access to life-saving medical treatment without further delay.

In addition to reaching out to COGAT, we have actively sought the assistance of the governments of the United States, France, and Germany, as well as the United Nations, to secure safe passage for both journalists. These efforts include direct communications with officials, appeals for humanitarian intervention, and coordination with diplomatic representatives in the region. Despite these endeavours, the possibility of evacuating these journalists is currently blocked due to a lack of Israeli authorisation for their safe passage. We urge COGAT to act swiftly and coordinate with the relevant stakeholders to facilitate the transfer of these journalists, whose lives remain in imminent danger.

The Israeli military's duty under international humanitarian law is to protect civilians, including journalists, and to ensure the wounded receive timely medical assistance. Targeting journalists is a clear violation of international law relating to situations of armed conflict. We respectfully ask for your immediate intervention to facilitate the necessary permissions for this evacuation.

The lives of these two journalists are at imminent risk, and swift action is required to prevent further tragedy. We urgently call for their evacuation to a facility where they can receive the care they require and will hold the Israeli authorities accountable, if their conditions deteriorate further or if they were to die.

Yours sincerely,
